Job Corps Pilots Electronic Health Record Specialist Certification

Job Corps has partnered with the National Healthcareer Association (NHA), a leader in providing certification and continuing education in allied health professions, to pilot an Electronic Health Record Specialist (EHRS) training and certification program. Considered an emerging “green” occupation, the use of digital media in health care is expected to improve efficiency by not only reducing physical storage space of paper records, but also allowing health professionals immediate access to patient records. This new program will support the ever-increasing industry demand for qualified electronic health record specialists.

In April 2010, eight Job Corps centers were selected as pilot sites: Glenmont, Iroquois, Keystone, Homestead, Cleveland, Quentin N. Burdick, Cascades, and Sierra Nevada. Approximately 500 Job Corps students will benefit from the year-long pilot program.
